NEW DEAL WILL BE AN ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN, CLAIM

STIFF FIGHT EXPECTED ON STATE N.R.A.

Final House Passage Is Scheduled For Tuesday

By Robert P. Howard, Associated Press Staff Writer, Springfield, Ill., April 28.—(P)—Special session debates promise to make the NRA at least a secondary political issue in the Illinois campaign this fall.

The concerted attempt by House Republicans this week to kill Governor Horner's bill for a state NRA drew the battle lines on which the national administration is to be involved in the state election.

Patronage, school relief, the sales tax and other strictly state issues probably will play the major part in the campaign, but leaders of both parties have indicated a willingness to discuss affairs at Washington in asking for votes.

Roosevelt Popular.

Republicans have taken pains not to make a personal attack on President Roosevelt, privately conceding his popularity.

They also admitted in the House debate yesterday that some parts of the recovery campaign have apparently been helpful in aiding business improvement.

But fifty Republican representatives voted as a unit in declaring that NRA codes have accomplished little, that the "brain trust" is a threat to the nation's structure and that the bill for a state industrial recovery act is unconstitutional, unnecessary and dangerous.

Democratic speakers, on the other hand, directly asked for support of the president and the governor, making the NRA bill a test of party loyalty and showing no hesitation in proclaiming success for the new agencies at Washington.

The fate of the controversial bill is uncertain and final adjournment of the third special session might not be possible next week.

Virtually no hope exists that the House can get the emergency majority of 102 votes for the state NRA and the Democrats face a difficult task in drumming up 77 votes, ten more than they had yesterday.

Final House passage is scheduled for Tuesday, but may be delayed another day or so. Then the bill must go through the Senate, taking at least three more days.

Otherwise, there isn't much left for the legislature to do. Action on other special session issues has either been completed or, in one or two cases, definitely blocked. Tired from the long deliberations, which have been virtually uninterrupted since October, the law-makers hope that they soon can go back home and get ready for the next campaign.

Three specialists and urologists held a consultation over the aged Turk who was removed to the National Childrens' Hospital. Symptoms of tremor from which he suffers were lessened, but the specialists expressed uneasiness over his condition.

SILVER BLOC TO CONTINUE FIGHT, CLAIM

Unimpressed By Offer Of Compromise From White House

Washington, April 28.—(P)—Unimpressed by a white house compromise offer, the congressional silver bloc today expressed determination to continue with plans for forcing the administration to give the metal a big and firm position in the nation's monetary system.

Virtually all members of the group predicted enactment of legislation at this session making remonetization of silver mandatory.

President Roosevelt's suggestion was that an international agreement be negotiated whereby the nations would increase their silver holdings until their monetary reserves consisted of 50 per cent gold and 50 per cent silver.

Pending the conclusion of such a pact, he asked that no silver legislation be enacted. He holds that the laws already give him all the authority necessary to make the silver purchases such a plan would entail.

Silver backers got a word or two into senate debate on their subject today, deplored the publication of a long list of names of those who have been trading in silver, compiled by the treasury and submitted to the session.

Of eight proposals bearing the signature of indicated approval of Mr. Roosevelt, at least two were reported today to stand slim chance of adoption this session. The communications regulation bill and the unemployment insurance bill and the unemployment insurance legislation fell into this category.

Leaders Confident

Leaders expressed confidence that the stock exchange regulation bill and the Roosevelt measure to give the president power to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with federal powers would be put through.

The National Labor Board bill, subjected to months of committee hearings and published criticism, remained on the doubtful list. The administration has described the bill as particularly valuable to meet the series of strikes dotting the nation's labor map.

Mr. Roosevelt's request for some form of air mail legislation was headed toward at least partial fulfillment this session. The Senate today passed the Black-McKellar resolution to continue temporary contracts pending a study of rate structures and final permanent legislation sometime in the future.

Senator Thomas (D-Okl.), persistent champion of inflation by silver or otherwise, estimated today that on the basis of the treasury's present gold holdings, it would have to buy $1,386,000,000 worth of silver to increase its silver stocks to the 30 per cent figure.

This would mean, he explained, that a portion of that amount would have to be bought in world markets, since the domestic supply of the metal is not estimated to exceed $500,000,000.

Meanwhile, talk of a senate investigation of silver holders continued. In sending the list to the senate, Morganthau said it was far from complete, many difficulties were encountered in getting the information and suggested the senate conduct its own independent inquiry.

Any action to recognize silver and increase its price as a commodity would receive the approval of the silver bloc. They heartily endorse the idea behind the president's compromise offer but said they believed it too tenuous and unnecessarily far in the future.

FOUR PERSONS CHARGED WITH HARBORING JOHN DILLINGER ARE INDICTED

NEGOTIATIONS FOR RETURN OF CHILD PRESSED

Apache Indians Are Aiding In Search For Little Girl

Tucson, Ariz., April 28.—(P)—Hitting the trail of two heavily armed men seen with a little girl near Fort Huachuca, hundreds of dead shot possemen plunged anew tonight into the hunt for June Robles and her kidnappers.

Apache Indian trackers augmented the possemen, who were warned that one of their quarry might be Clyde Barrow, notorious outlaw.

Quid cars loaded with eager men hunters streaked out of Tucson on receiving an alarm that a motor car bearing a Texas license and reputedly stolen at Uvalde, Texas, might be carrying the girl and the men for whom the greatest man hunting organization ever gathered in Arizona had been looking.

Quick Climax

The report brought to a quick climax the nerve-racking suspense of possemen forced to stand idle with their guns while a secret intermediary for the Robles family reputedly was dickered with the abductors for the life and freedom of the 6-year-old girl, seized in Tucson Wednesday afternoon and held for a $15,000 ransom.

Eva Coleman, a negro woman who operates a restaurant at White City, on the edge of the Fort Huachuca military reservation, turned in the startling cue.

She said the men drove up to her restaurant obtained food and attempted to feed the little girl. She said she saw a machine gun, a rifle and an automatic pistol in the car. She took the number of the machine and noted army officers, who in turn telephoned to Tucson.

The alarm soon spread throughout the wild border country that has seen hunts and gun battles of history making caliber.

Barrow is sought as the leader of a southwestern gang accused of a dozen killings.

A great encircling movement and then a "squeeze" to force the quarry into ever narrowing confines was contemplated by the possemen.

As far as was known, no money had changed hands and no actual contact with the abductors had been made. The idea and movements of the go-between remained carefully guarded.

Under increasing strain, the family headed by Bernabe Robles, reputedly wealthy and aged cattleman, clung to the hope the winsome brown-eyed little girl still lived.

Negotiations of arbitration was in sight or had been effected for most of the other strikes. Cleveland's striking tank truck drivers agreed to a 10 day truce and it was hoped 2,000 striking gas station men would adopt the same plan. Motorists, after 11 nearly gasless days, were assured of open the plant, where a strike has involved 8,400 workers.

Almost immediately it was announced that a injunction would be attempted Monday under the aegis of the national labor board.

The man who sent the officers after McLaughlin was William E. Vidler, the gambler in whose pockets justice department agents said they found $2,665 of the $5 and $10 Bremer ransom bills. He, too, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and put away under the $100,000 bond for a removal hearing May 7, when witnesses from St. Paul must appear against both men.

We have information," said Prosecutor Leo J. Hassenauer, "that McLaughlin was the 'brains' of the kidnapping plot, even if he himself did not personally participate in the kidnapping. We believe he may still have in his possession the unbound portion of the ransom."

McLaughlin was already under $25,000 bond on a federal indictment charging him with a part in the $250,000 Chicago mail robbery Dec. 6, 1932 when Bremer, a St. Paul banker, was "snatched" last Jan. 17 by kidnappers who nabbed him in his own car as he stopped for a traffic light. Bremer was a captive 23 days before the tremendous ransom was collected and the band turned him loose near Rochester.

So the charge of managing a big "fence" for "hot" money and bonds was no novelty to McLaughlin. An old timer among political bosses of the west side, he was for years a member of the Illinois state legislature, a reputed paymaster sans portfolio in the grafting era of the Chicago sanitary district, and linked with the late Edgar B. Levensberger, who killed himself the day they were indicted, in disposing of the quarter million loot gathered from registered mail sacks at Clark and Adams streets 17 months ago.

"Who, me?" was the general reaction of McLaughlin as he emerged from a day in secret custody of the government. Agents of Melvin H. Purvis, chief of the bureau of investigation here, had grabbed him at home yesterday, directed to him by Vidler.

He told newspapermen of his arrest and questioning in an air blended of ruthlessness and hurt innocence.

"They came into my home and turned the place upside down," he said. "But they didn't find any Bremer money, because I never had any. Finally about five o'clock they took me downtown and began questioning me. They kept me up all night and only gave me some coffee. The agents kept calling Purvis and reporting, when I wouldn't tell them what I couldn't tell them, one of them hit me in the jaw."

Rudy York represented the Mt. Zion neighborhood here Saturday.

Hunt For Criminals Is Continued By Federal Agents

St. Paul, April 28.—(P)—The government made good today its pledge that no friend of John Dillinger would go unpunished, indicating four persons charged with harboring the notorious outlaw and aiding him to escape the law.

The indictments were returned by a federal grand jury as the Dillinger hunt spread from University Avenue in St. Paul and Minneapolis to Court Street in Binghamton, N. Y., with flurries of excitement at Chicago, Madison, Wis., Duluth, Minn., Columbus, O., Marshfield, Wis., and other points.

Accused in the indictments were Evelyn Frechette, girl friend of the outlaw; Dr. Clayton May of Minneapolis; Mrs. Augusta Salt, a nurse and Beth Green, alias Moore, reputed wife of a Dillinger gunner since slain.

Buffalo Gnats

Farmers in Arkansas are thinking that if it isn't one thing, it's something else. Clouds of buffalo gnats have invaded that state and are causing thousands of dollars worth of damage to livestock. The insects bite the animals and are also inhaled by them. In one section 300 horses and mules perished, leaving farmers without animals to aid them in putting in their crops.

The only way to fight the gnats is to house the livestock and keep the insects away from smudge fires. But this means that all work in the fields must cease, and farmers who want to save their livestock must sacrifice their crops. There is little choice of troubles.

Not so long ago a drought devastated the Arkansas farms and reduced much of the population to starvation. Outside relief brought by the Red Cross saved the lives of the people. The next year floods swept over the lowlands of Arkansas and did almost as much damage as the drought. Doubtless the farmers have learned the truth that "man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward," and that troubles never come single. It would almost seem that some of the Egyptian plagues are being visited on the luckless state.

Grading a Yard

When J. D. Crain of Versailles, Mo., decided to grade his yard, he did not know what he would discover. A mound obstructed the view from his front porch, and he meant to remove it. Five huge white oak trees had to be felled, but in that country trees are not as important as conservation would teach us to believe.

The trees proved to be more than a century old. When they were out of the way the farmer went to work to level the mound. He found some flat stones at the ground level and beneath them a pit containing seven skeletons. One was of giant size, indicating that the man who had inhabited it was 8 feet four inches tall, and had a skull a half-inch thick. The bones were well preserved.

How long that grave yard had been there, no one can tell. Perhaps it was made while Englishmen were settling Jamestown and Plymouth, or perhaps while DeSoto was searching for the Fountain of Youth. The mound builders put it there, and none of the white settlers encountered members of this lost race, which had evidently passed to oblivion before their arrival.

The Missouri farmer collected the bones and put them in a box, which he buried in a deep hole near his front porch. He continued grading his yard, which is good evidence that the graves of dead races cannot stop the progress of living men of the present day.

Half The Way Around

It has been several years since major road building activities were in progress in Morgan county. With the start of operations again on Route 104 southeast of Jacksonville, a pavement which eventually will link this city, Franklin and Waverly, attention once more turns to hard roads and the part they take in our modern life.

Jacksonville is the hub of five major paved highways at present. These extend out in all directions, helping to form one of the greatest state highway systems in the world. Illinois has long been known for its leadership in hard road building. Figures compiled recently show that state and county highways in Illinois total a distance equal to more than half the circumference of the earth. There is enough hard road mileage in this state to build four standard roads between New York City and San Francisco.

This comparison gives a general idea of the vastness of the state's network of roads. City streets and township roads are not included in the 13,335 miles of pavement used in the comparison. Such figures would increase considerably the grand total paved roads of the state.

During the depression years of 1930 to 1933, roading building in Illinois totalled 5,505, a yearly average and a half time that of the 1914-24 average.

These figures indicate the ever-growing demand for more and better roads. Jacksonville is fortunate in having paved routes in each direction. But the building of one road seems to lead to another. A community cannot have too many smooth highways upon which to travel. The present pavements in Morgan county may be only a starter of a network to be built in future years.

Illinois' system of hard roads now would halfway circle the equator. A few more years may see them stretched into a total length equal to the world's circumference.

Return of Wilderness

It is reported that wild animals are roaming over lands deserted by civilized men in the United States, and that Indians are increasing in numbers. Frontiers are receding along a thousand lines, one author says.

Yet the government is building dams to reclaim more land, while it encourages farmers to keep their acres out of production, levying taxes on the people both to add new land, and to pay for the limitation of crops. It might be just as well to cease reclamation projects, to dynamite the levies and let the rivers return to their normal course.

If the wilderness is to return, it should be of some benefit. The great fishing grounds of the lakes and swamps along the rivers should be brought back. Forests should be replanted and lands which are now being cultivated at a loss should be given over to the growing of timber.

The return of the wilderness does not mean the recession of civilization. In fact it may be the very thing that is needed to preserve our soil, our rainfall and our normal climate. Unless we do provide something to hold moisture in the soil and cease draining the water into rushing rivers to carry our fertile ground to the sea, this land will become a desert. Drought is already too frequent and does too much damage to crops in the great American farming region.

Danger of Economizing

There is just one thing about the new airmail bids recently submitted in Washington that is a little bit disturbing. That is the thought that some lines, winning new contracts with extremely low bids, may have to cut the corners so closely in financing their flights that the safety margin will be reduced.

The newspapermen are proud of her, insisting that she has suffered more personal attacks than the president himself and that perhaps there won't be so many after her worsting of Senator Schall, who said her philanthropic furniture factory at Hyde Park was a profiteering enterprise.

The First Lady takes a vigorous, outspoken interest in social problems and sometimes can afford to be more informal and frank than her husband.

In her press conference "off the record" comments, her humanitarian slant is even more obvious than his.

Two Great Young Minds

The capital's current reading: "The Planless Roosevelt Revolution," by Lawrence Dennis, in the American Mercury, and Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell's speech, "The Return to Democracy."

I met Dennis in Senator Cutting's office—a tall, dark, handsome youngish ex-diplomat and ex-Wall Street banking expert with a realistic, objective viewpoint.

His articles cite conflicts in the New Deal and insist it must have a definite, planned program. Personally, he believes the country is headed for Fascism—since it is bound to head in some direction.

Tugwell says he thinks Fascism can be avoided by reforms in the present system. He thinks the American people are too individualistic, too defiant of regimentation, to enter anything of the sort.

To which the Dennis answer was that human nature, under given compulsions, is the same on any continent. Tugwell thinks the depression is temporary; Dennis doesn't. But Tugwell isn't any too optimistic.

He remarked at a dinner table the other night that he didn't think the country yet really believed that every good American had a right to a job or even that we ought to abolish poverty. Anyway, those are random thoughts culled from a couple of brilliant, divergent minds which have inspired lots of heavy thinking here.

Just Natural Battlers

Little dramas of government life: A boy and girl were married, got to quarreling and separated. The boy lost his job, so both were looking for work. CWA brought them together, unwittingly in the office of a library cataloging project. Reconciliation? No, they started fighting again and had to be quelled so the rest of the force could work. Now they're both job-hunting again. . . . A brilliant young western congressman would have made a better record this session but for one weakness. Blazing with a yen for social justice, he becomes so overwrought over his favorite issues that he starts drinking to hold his nerves together—and takes too much. . . . An Interior Department girl was assigned to a night job. She had just married a man who works days and tried to have something done about it. The official who interceded for her was formally advised: "The shifts are rotated every 30 days, so the husband will have the benefit of his wife's society at least one month out of three." . . . Several years ago a man who is now a "little cabinet" member, engaged in a corporate reorganization in his home state, discovered a crooked official in the company and had him fired. Last summer he helped the same man get a good emergency agency job here. Now the second man is engaged in an undercover campaign of slander against the "little cabinet" fellow. . . . A girl secretary in NIRA smashed her automobile into another car and was convicted of reckless driving. She was asked to resign with the explanation that she had been in a "similar" affair before. It seems she was in a party which once invaded a speakeasy with the alleged representation of one of the men that he was General Johnson. A newspaper report said Johnson himself had raucously demanded entrance—and Johnson obtained an abject apology. . . . Taxi drivers are still complaining to passengers about the D. A. R. convention. They say the members often piled into their cabs six at a time and insisted on driving all over town for 20 cents.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

To the Editor of The Journal-Courier:

Fresno, Calif., April 28.—This is Fresno, Calif., a beautiful little city of 30 thousand. You might ask, "Well what about it what that to us?" Well you go home tonight and have a nice glass of native wine with your meal. Fresno gives it to you. Grapes grow here like lobbyists in Washington. 40 wineries here, and a rotary convention. All 41 are going strong, night and day.

First Lady Adds to Fame as Militant Crusader . . . Dennis and Tugwell Take Center of Capital Stage . . . A Little CWA Drama Starts and Ends With Battle.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington, April 28.—Girls who cover Mrs. Roosevelt's press conferences brag that she becomes more radical and aggressive as the president seems more conservative and conciliatory.

They cite her spirited replies to Senator Schall, Dr. Wirt, and critics of her pet subsistence homestead projects, her implied attack on milk distributors who profit at the expense of farmers and city families, and her speech to the sometimes militaristic D. A. R., urging it to work for peace.

The newspaperwomen are proud of her, insisting that she has suffered more personal attacks than the president himself and that perhaps there won't be so many after her worsting of Senator Schall, who said her philanthropic furniture factory at Hyde Park was a profiteering enterprise.

Johnny Weissmuller, famous swimmer, again comes out in primitive style to portray Tarzan, and again with Maureen O'Sullivan, this time in "Tarzan and His Mate." Neil Hamilton also appears in this cast. This latest Tarzan picture appears at the Fox-Illinois theatre for three days, beginning Monday. Description can hardly be given to fit the picture, but of course, as in the preceding Tarzan film, there is plenty of action—plenty.

AWARD RIBBONS FOR MORE THAN HUNDRED FINE QUILTS SHOWN

Rev. Vanderhorst of Woodson was a caller in the local community yesterday.

Among the Winchester visitors here yesterday afternoon were the Misses Lillian and Mary Collins.

White Hall, April 28.—The Methodist ladies of White Hall held a quilt show in the church recently which was quite a success, and more than a hundred quilts were shown. Ribbons were awarded to the quilts receiving the most votes, which was determined by giving each person one vote, no attempt being made at judging.

The first prize ribbon was awarded to Miss Margaret Hornbeck of White Hall, who displayed a "French Bouquet," quilt that contained six thousand pieces the size of a quarter of a dollar.

The second prize ribbon went to Mrs. Charles Brazel of Roodhouse who exhibited an "Autumn Leaf" applique quilt. Both of these were new and modern. Special mention is made of a quilt top which was pieced by the late Mrs. Nancy Moore of Manchester, mother of John Moore of this city. Mrs. Moore pieced this quilt after she was one hundred years old and did it without the aid of spectacles. A picture of Mrs. Moore on her one hundredth birthday, surrounded by her floral offerings on that occasion, was displayed with the quilt.

Mrs. John Ridings displayed a quilt which was pieced by her aunt, a Miss Strang, which was seventy-five years old.

Mrs. C. B. Roodhouse exhibited a blue and white wool coverlet, which was spun and woven by her grandmother, Mrs. Abbie Post Griswold in 1812.

Mrs. David Culbertson exhibited two quilts, one of which was made in 1853 and the other in 1875.

Mrs. Jessie Griswold exhibited a quilt which was made by her grandmother Hodges which is more than eighty years old.

Mrs. Howard Piper exhibited two quilts, one made in 1865 and the other in 1875.

Mrs. M. Daley displayed a quilt which her husband, Mike Daley pieced when he was fourteen years, while lying in a hospital with a broken leg.

One of the most interesting quilts was a historical quilt made by Mrs. George McClure, in which scenes from American history were depicted, with applique in color.

Mrs. Edward Spencer exhibited an applique quilt with Iris design which was popular with those voting, winning third place, though no prize was given for third choice.

ARMSTRONG'SDrivers' License is Favored at Meeting

A committee of Jacksonville citizens attended a meeting Friday of the Illinois Conference on Highway Safety Legislation in the interest of the proposed financial responsibility act and drivers' license law. The meeting was held at the Leland hotel in Springfield with 300 representatives from every principal community in the state in attendance.

The committee from here consisted of T. M. Tomlinson, Fletcher Blackburn, Henry Frisch, Bernard Strongman, and R. E. Welch. The convention went on record in favor of the proposed legislation, and also for the reduction of state auto license fees. Under the insurance responsibility act, a driver who has an accident and who comes under a damage judgment must pay such judgment or have his license to drive taken from him. He cannot get back the license until he submits evidence the judgment has been paid and that future judgments, if incurred, will be paid. An insurance policy will be accepted as such evidence.

It was brought out that twenty-nine states and the District of Columbia now have drivers' license laws. Such a law protects traffic against irresponsible or drunken drivers, as reckless driving means forfeiture of the license.

Great Stuff

WHEN you consider how long men have been pottering around in this old world, and what a very short time they have had the automobile, you can't expect them to understand it very thoroughly.

We remember the first automobile we ever saw. It was literally a horseless buggy. The village blacksmith had mounted a gasoline engine under the seat of an ordinary buggy. Just how it all worked we don't know. As a matter of fact it usually didn't.

In those days gasoline was perfect if it didn't cause the motor to spit and backfire. And to tell you the truth that seems still to be the standard of measurement.

We stand between our customers and this naive assumption that all gasoline is good gasoline. Ours must not only fire when the plugs spark, but it must vaporize so thoroughly that it burns to the last atom. It must do something more than put-out. It must push-push, smoothly, powerfully.

Of course some motorists are gasoline wise. They watch their oil for dilution and their speedometers for mileage. They don't want their valves to carbon up or their bearings to pound loose. And in this community most of them have turned to—

First it was the Navy (which disapproved a PWA painting of sailors on New York's Riverside Drive) and now it is the Department of Agriculture that has become involved in an art controversy. If you ask Rexford Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, the huge mural Gilbert White has painted for the new Agricultural Building isn't quite modern enough, especially for a building dedicated to the New Deal. So there will be no formal unveiling when the work is done. A section of the landscape, the product of three years' work, is shown above, with White standing at the left.

Chicago Cubs Chase Dean Brothers From Mound and Trounce Cardinals 7 to 1

Chicago, April 28.—(P)—Combining some highly effective pitching by Guy Bush with an extra base hit assault on the Dean Brothers, Dizzy and Paul, the Cubs defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 1, for their ninth victory in ten games.

Doubles by Woody English and Kiki Cuyler, a triple by Bill Herman and Chuck Klein's single scored four runs in the third and accounted for Dizzy Dean's activity for the day. In the fourth Klein hit his fifth home run of the season, a tremendous drive over the right field stand with a man on, off Paul Dean.

Bush gave seven hits and struck out eight batters, three of them in the fourth after Collins had tripled and Davis had walked. The victory was Bush's third straight.

Pennsylvania relay carnival was brought to a brilliant, record-smashing conclusion today before 45,000 spectators, one of the biggest crowds that has ever witnessed a track meet in the east.

As the sun and a brisk breeze completed the job of drying out a field that was a quagmire the day before, athletes from the south and middle west combined with the eastern brigade to crack a total of five major records in a succession of thrilling performances.

Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas cyclone, added another gem to his mile-running crown by taking the measure of his slim Pennsylvania rival, Gene Venekle, in the track record time of 4:11.8 for the day's spotlight contest while Cornell University's squad staged a long-sought come-back by sharing the major relay racing honors with the fleet sons of Indiana. The former Franklin Field mile mark of 4:14 was set by Leo Lemond three years ago.

Unable to win a single relay feature since 1922, Cornell celebrated its return to the heights by bagging three titles. The big red sprinters romped off with the 880-yard championship today after capturing the 440 yesterday and captured the 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay in the new carnival record time of 1:02.4 in the final after tying the old mark in their first test.

Indiana, which never had won a major Penn carnival relay previously, also came through with three triumphs, thanks chiefly to the speedy work of the twin Hoosier aces, Ivan Fugua and Charles Hornbostel, who ran in every race. After beating Princeton's Bill Bonthron in a half-mile finish yesterday, Hornbostel helped Indiana take both the one and two mile championships this afternoon. Fugua ran an anchor 4:10 in 48 seconds flat, fastest of the day, as the Hoosiers posted a 3:18.7 performance.

Two stalwart southerners competing in special events blasted carnival records as Ralston Legore of the University of North Carolina hurled the javelin 214 feet, 81 inches, and M. Zorl of North Carolina State sent the discus spinning 151 feet, 1 inch. A third, chunky Earl Widmeyer of the University of Maryland, dashed away from all rivals in the 100-meter final to win Dick Hardy of Cornell, intercollegiate A. A. A. champion, by three yards, in the good time of 10.7 seconds.

George Spitz, lanky New York University jumper, accounted for the remaining record when he negotiated 6 feet 71/2 inches in the high jump, beating his own previous carnival mark by nearly two inches. After beating Howard Spencer, Geneva College negro, and Murphy of Notre Dame, Spitz set sail for a world record attempt. He cleared 6 feet 81/2 inches in the exhibition jump before failing three times with the bar at 6 feet 16 inches.

DRAKE ONE MILE
RELAY MARK FALLS

D. Moines, Ia., April 28.—(P)—They waited eleven years for a quartet of quarter milers to come along and break the one-mile relay record at the Drake relay carnival.

Today it happened when four fleet-footed youngsters from the University of California at Los Angeles clinched the silver anniversary of the Drake games by smashing the record hung up by the University of Iowa in 1923. The record was broken in the last race of the day before 18,000 spectators greatest crowd to witness the west's oldest athletic carnival since it was started 25 years ago.

The Callicrash quartette, composed of James Miller, Sinclair Lott, Ray Vejar and James Luvalle, clipped a full second off the mark hung up by the Hawkeyes. To running the drama to the victory, the Hawkeyes who hung up the previous record were among the spectators to see it cracked.

Wilson, Brookings, Morrow and Noll, the Iowans, trooped to the infield stand to present medals to the new record holders to the accompaniment of cheers from the crowd.

The windup of the two day athletic carnival saw five records for the meet smashed and another tied, in addition to the world's shot put record shattered yesterday.

The finish also saw the remarkable come-back of Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette's negro sprinter, co-holder of the world's record for the 100-yard dash. Metcalfe, despite a bleeding muscle in his right leg, won the dash today for the third consecutive year, beating his field to the tape in 9.7, just two tenths of a second off the meet record of 9.5 he set in 1932.

Metcalfe then ran as anchor man on Marquette's relay team and sprinted to win the 440-yard relay by a margin of two yards from Eckert of Illinois. Metcalfe not only made up a handicap of two yards but came on with an amazing burst of speed to enable Marquette to win the race in 41.8, only a fifth of a second off the meet record.

The man mountain from the south, 275-pound Jack Torrance of Louisiana State, failed in six efforts today to smash his amazing mark of 88 feet 11 inches in the shot put, made in the preliminaries yesterday. In all attempts today with one exception, he threw the 16-pound missile more than 52 feet.

New records were established in the one-mile university relay, the javelin two, mile university relay, the two mile relay for class A high schools, the one mile relay for class A high schools and the university half mile relay was tied.

Louisiana State, holder of the national collegiate championship, accounted for three of the five new marks. Torrance won two events, the discus and the shot. Nathan Blair, also of Louisiana, set a new meet record in the javelin when he heaved the spear 209.21 feet in his final attempt.

Louisiana State smashed the Drake record for the two mile relay, setting a new mark of 7:42.8, six seconds faster than Notre Dame's record hung up two years ago. The Louisianians with Glen Hardin, national collegiate quarter mile champion, running as anchor man, was pressed by Purdue.

Texas' half mile relay team tied the Drake record of 1:26.6 made by Michigan in 1930. Kansas Vocational High of Topeka and North High of Des Moines, set records in class A high school competition in the one mile and two mile races respectively.

Boston, April 28.—(P)—Melvin Ott, the sturdy right fielder of the New York Giants, provided the blow that gave the world champions a 4 to 1 victory today in their first Boston appearance of the season and gave lefty Carl Hubbell his third triumph on the hill.

Metcalfe not only made up a handicap of two yards but came on with an amazing burst of speed to enable Marquette to win the race in 41.8, only a fifth of a second off the meet record.

The man mountain from the south, 275-pound Jack Torrance of Louisiana State, failed in six efforts today to smash his amazing mark of 88 feet 11 inches in the shot put, made in the preliminaries yesterday. In all attempts today with one exception, he threw the 16-pound missile more than 52 feet.

New records were established in the one-mile university relay, the javelin two, mile university relay, the two mile relay for class A high schools, the one mile relay for class A high schools and the university half mile relay was tied.

Louisiana State, holder of the national collegiate championship, accounted for three of the five new marks. Torrance won two events, the discus and the shot. Nathan Blair, also of Louisiana, set a new meet record in the javelin when he heaved the spear 209.21 feet in his final attempt.

Louisiana State smashed the Drake record for the two mile relay, setting a new mark of 7:42.8, six seconds faster than Notre Dame's record hung up two years ago. The Louisianians with Glen Hardin, national collegiate quarter mile champion, running as anchor man, was pressed by Purdue.

Texas' half mile relay team tied the Drake record of 1:26.6 made by Michigan in 1930. Kansas Vocational High of Topeka and North High of Des Moines, set records in class A high school competition in the one mile and two mile races respectively.

Albert Crum Dies at Home in County, Was Bank Official

Literberry community. He had been in declining health for several months, but was able to come to Jacksonville last week. He had been bedfast since Tuesday.

Mr. Crum was a member of one of the county's oldest families. He was born in the Literberry community on Aug. 31, 1858, a son of Abram and Sarah Crum.

At an early age he engaged in farming and stock raising, a combination of activities in which he was highly successful. Mr. Crum was a lover of fine horses, and on his farm many prize winners were raised. For a number of years he had a string of show horses which he exhibited at many fairs. His entries won honors at the St. Louis World's Fair and at the Illinois State Fair.

Possessed of excellent business judgment, Mr. Crum soon became one of the county's most substantial citizens. He was highly honorable in his dealings and enjoyed the confidence of the entire community.

He was one of the original group of citizens who formed the Farmers State Bank. He was elected as a vice president after the death of D. Rees Browning.

Mr. Crum was united in marriage with Sallie Belle Murray at Literberry Dec. 6, 1883, who survives.

He was a longtime member of the Literberry Christian church, active in all of its departments.

ANNUAL A. A. U. W. LUNCHEON HELD HERE SATURDAY

College Senior Classes Entertained at Event; Mrs. Holt is Speaker

In one of the most outstanding events of the season members of the Jacksonville Branch of the A. A. U. W. and their guests the girls of the senior classes of Illinois and MacMurray colleges were entertained at a luncheon at the Colonial Inn. The president, Dean Clara B. Williams presided at the speakers table where were seated among others, the speaker of the afternoon Mrs. Henry Holt Hilton, president of the Chicago A. A. U. W., Miss Lucy Williams, of Springfield, state president and Mrs. Wm. Stoops, state secretary. Mrs. R. O. Stoops, chairman of hostesses and her committee arranged the charming appointments for this occasion.

One hundred and twenty-five guests were seated at small tables throughout the spacious rooms of the Inn and at the long table in the alcove of the dining room. A large center bouquet of rose buds and sweet peas adorned this large table and vases filled with spring flowers were arranged attractively in the rooms and on the smaller tables.

Following the luncheon, Miss Clara B. Williams welcomed the senior girls of the colleges, expressing most graciously the desire of the society for closer fellowship with them in the future years.

Preceding the address, Mrs. Francis Fluer sang a group of songs, which were well balanced and brought out the clear tones of her voice. Miss Mahala McGeehan accompanied Mrs. Fluer with splendid effect.

In a few remarks Miss Lucy Williams, state president, from Springfield, Illinois, congratulated the Jacksonville association upon the splendid cooperation of the colleges. Mrs. Williams, state secretary was also presented at this time.

Message of Inspiration

As the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Hilton brought a message of inspiration to the university women in speaking upon the subject: "Books, How, When and Why Women Read."

In reviewing the life of women in the ancient cities of Cairo and Damascus, Mrs. Hilton emphasized the great appeal which reading had for them under proper guidance and she stated that this was true for all women.

Very cleverly, the speaker illustrated her remarks, saying that the reasons why women read are many. Mrs. Hilton said, "Woman read for facts and information. Some read to forget mental or physical ills, and for them books mean a great part of their lives. On days in their lives when the sun does not shine the great world of books is open to women."

The speaker brought out the point that in the present age women need an exact language, and it is a great satisfaction to use a correct language. Humorously, to illustrate her point Mrs. Hilton quoted many apt sketches.

Fiction Widely Read

Fiction the speaker said is widely read and biographies, autobiographies and letters have a strong appeal and establishes a happy contented background for any home. She also suggested the reading of books for the pre-school age as of great benefit to the child as well as the adult. However, the speaker advised one syllable word histories, myths and a selected group of fairy tales.

In the realm of poetry there is a large field of both ancient and modern poetry to be read and studied by women. Mrs. Hilton quoted from the classics, also spoke of the nature poems of Edwin Curran, reading from "Autumn." The poem "Prisoners" by Nancy Barr Navity was read, showing the decided Ego tendency.

In closing Mrs. Hilton voiced the sentiment that from the many good books a choice of the best must be chosen and the tendency to go to extremes must be avoided. This point she illustrated most cleverly and proved to her audience that a good book is like a bugle call to a life filled with worthwhile activities.

The university women felt that it was a rare opportunity to hear Mrs. Hilton, a noted member of the organization, who was the first woman to attend Yale University in graduate work in 1892-93, the first year that women were admitted.

The hostesses for the luncheon were: Mrs. R. O. Stoops, chairman, Mrs. Francis Rantz, Miss Jessie Jenkins, Mrs. John Agger, Mrs. Sam Osborne, Mrs. John Hackett, Miss Louise Shepard, Mrs. J. M. Hollowell, Miss Lillian Havenshill, Mrs. Joe Patterson Smith, Miss Dorothy Farrell, Miss Dial and Mrs. Courtney Crouch Wright.

FARMERS AIDED BY CORN-HOG PROGRAM, CLAIM

Gross Return to Pork Produc- er 25 Per Cent Higher, is Report

The corn-hog allotment committee of Morgan county of which Wallace T. Hembrough is chairman points out that hogs Friday of last week sold at a price equal to the price last year same period, but the gross return to the farmer who cooperates in the corn-hog program is 25 per cent higher and the price per hundredweight is 67 per cent higher. Hogs sold Friday for $3.75 per hundred weight, a price identical with that of a year ago.

The committee asserts that if the price of hogs remains identical this year, with that of a like period in 1933, the benefit payment represents an added gross income to the hog producer who cooperates.

For example, says the committee, the sale of 100 hogs weighing 200 pounds each, in 1933-34 at the price of $3.75 per hundred weight brought a total sum of $750. If the same grower signed a contract to reduce his production he would market 75 hogs at a price of $3.75. Assuming that the hogs weighed the same as those of one year ago, or 200 pounds each, the market sales would total $625.50. In addition the farmer would receive $25 per cent payment, or a gross of $937.50.

This gross compared to the $750 received by the De Kalb school for only three-fourths as many hogs. Another way of stating the issue was pointed out, is that the farmer would this year, receive gross returns 25 per cent higher and the price paid per hundredweight would be 67 per cent higher.

The allotment committee further points out that cases have been known where packers have said the reason hogs are cheap is because of the processing tax on pork, while the retailer pitted against each other in the competitive games. The traditional May Day Queen will preside over the festival and award the honors to the winners in appropriate ceremonies.

Every student at the college will participate in the presentation. Various dances will hold a prominent place in festival. May Day is expected to attract the usual large attendance of townspeople who look forward to the event each year with much enthusiasm and interest.

The dancers have been selected as follows:

SPENDS 76 YEARS,
ENTIRE LIFE IN COUNTY OF CASS

Virginia, April 28.—John Cherry, a resident of Cass County his entire 76 years, and prominent in all civic administration in his home town of Chandler, is a frequent visitor to the event each year with much enthusiasm and interest.

The speaker illustrated her remarks, saying that the reasons why women read are many. Mrs. Hilton said, "Woman read for facts and information. Some read to forget mental or physical ills, and for them books mean a great part of their lives. On days in their lives when the sun does not shine the great world of books is open to women."
